So a zone with a summer run time (100%) of 10 minutes with an auto seasonal adjustment of 50% gets moved down to a runtime of 2 minutes...this repeats each night until the programmed time is eventually down to zero. Sprinkler System Manuals and specifications of heads and sprinkler rotors. Call Rain Bird Support and I had three calls with them. Apparently, this is a simple mathematical problem with the solution that everyone needs to program it so that the scheduled time does not change and only change the adjusted time. I had the impression that this was a new problem, but I come to the application reviews and I see comments that this same behavior was happening in July 2020 and here is November and it still does not work. I am not sure, but I think it also promoted an update of firmware to the wifi lnk mide. I had to turn off the automatic adjustment. Nelson Big Gun 200 Nozzle specifications Click here to see the specifications. The program time must remain the same. If you do not see what you are looking for here, or you have other questions, realize us so that we can help you answer your questions. It is simple! Edit 1: December 2, 2020 from the launch version 2.16, my ESP-TM2 controller now seems to be working properly with respect to the automatic seasonal adjustments expelled à ª º By Rain Bird. We include links to some of the most popular sprinkle and irrigation manuals, along with common rotors and sprinkler heads specifications below. Weather controllers Smartline controllers click here to see the manual that I have had the LNK wifi for approximately two weeks and thought it was crazy when the seasonal adjustment was applied to the scheduled time and then applied again to obtain the adjustment. I have changed my qualification accordingly. The user establishes the program time ... don't change that! The adjusted time is equal to the time of the program multiplied by seasonal adjustment.
